“ Les was one of the most honorable men I've met. He served his family, his country and his community. He didn't enjoy small talk but could provoke you into exploring your feelings on a controversial topic. Les introduced me to fresh vegetables and planting a garden. He was very studious in his pursuit of fish, exploring maps and solar lunar tables but it didn't ever seem to help us catch more fish. We would take our topographic maps up north and try other lakes while camping. Nope. No big fish here either. It didn't really matter that we caught any. He just enjoyed being outdoors and fishing was what we did after trimming trees. Les made a big impact on his family and community. He set the bar high for the rest of us and will be missed.
