“ Even 5 years later, I can't stop thinking about him. He was my absolute best friend, favorite Person ever for 3 straight years through college, not a day went by that we didn't hang out or talk, we lost touch but we always knew we weren't far. We stayed in contact but never like it was. You were such an amazing caring, funny, sweet, smart, passionate person with so much to offer the world and I wish I would have been more active in your life. The last thing you said to me was that you loved me and missed me and we would talk soon. I miss you and think about you often and pray that you are finally at peace. You always called me your sis and always looked out for me, I pray we meet again so I can continue to beat you in pool. ❤️

“ I happened upon Eric's obituary and feel saddened to hear that he has died. The loss of someone so young is traumatic on everyone who knew him. I've read in the Bible that time and unforeseen things happen to everyone and that it's not God's purpose to take a loved one from us. Jesus had said that a time would come when all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out to a resurrection to life, or a resurrection of judgment. This indicates that our dear loved ones will have a chance at life again. What a loving provision Our Creator has for us in the future! Though I didn't know Eric well, I send my sympathy. Know that the community cares.

“ Dear Tony, Diana and Family,

We are so sorry for the loss of your son. After reading some of the memories shared by others it sounds like Eric was blessed with the same heart as his parents. Kind, caring, and knew how to brighten someone's day and make them laugh. You are in our prayers as you go through this difficult time.

“ Sending hugs & prayers to the Coleman family.

It's been a while since I've seen Eric, but will always remember the happy little boy playing baseball with my boys (Gary & John). Our boys both had the big smiles going on, hard to say who's was bigger.

I can't imagine loosing a child, no matter what age. It's not suppose to happen that way. Everything happens for a reason, time will reveal why someday.

Stay close and hold the good memories even closer.

“ I know you maybe thinking why? Why must bad things happen to good people. But remember, every thing happens for a reason and for those reason's you are one step closer to god's plan.

Walking away in silence. Let the thunder of memories fill their empty sky.

So sorry for the Coleman family, my heart goes out to you Big T.

“ Although we didn't know each other long, it wasn't hard to see the trials you had been threw. You made me smile and laugh and that means so much these days. As the other comments from your friends and family they have mentioned your smile. It was a very big and contagious smile. You had so much pep in your step and that was what I liked about you. You made me laugh. I'm compassionate for your family and pray that they all grow and heal from this and know in their hearts that you did all you can to simply love, be a good father, work hard and just keep moving. Let us all remember your big smile.

“ My heart goes out to the Coleman family. I know the challenges you faced with Eric. But he loved you all so very much.

He was one of my closest friends. We shared many times together that were ultimately a blessing. He helped me get through some very challenging situations and brought me into his life because he cared so much about me. He told me on many occasions that I helped him just as much as he helped me.

My heart truly is broken over this man. I did love him very much. But ultimately he loved his son so much that he refused to get into a relationship with anyone until he could complete the task at hand of trying to bring his son home. That was his only priority from the time Jalen was born.

He was the type of person who gave me a jacket for fall season because I didn't have one. He had an incredible smile and great sense of humor. He changed my heart, world and perspective on so many things. His laugh was infectious. He constantly told me I was beautiful and that I was a sweetheart.

I tried so hard to take his pain away. But ultimately I've discovered that he would have never asked for someone to carry what was his burden to bare. His heart was made of gold. He loved everyone the best way he knew how. Through laughter, compliments and showing people how to have fun. He loved life despite the pain he felt from it.

I miss him terribly. I hope you all can heal and find peace in him going home. He's free of the pain of this world and with God now.
