“ I remember Christmas celebrations and family reunions that took place on Windsor Drive; at Christmas we ate at tables temporarily set up in the basement, and at the reunions we ate homemade ice cream in the driveway. Our host, Uncle George, was the eldest of the Knapp brothers and in some ways unique. Anyone who knows the family has to acknowledge that Knapps share certain similarities, and George—being the firstborn—set the standard. But I can hear his deep voice calling “Gum” or “Hank” or using other nicknames for the kids and I remember thinking how different he seemed from his brothers. For example, he inherited more patience, or the family gatherings would never have been on Windsor Drive. Uncle George made life better for us because of the many things he did throughout his life. I miss him, and I will always try to be more like him. He was a gracious family host, one I especially cherish from my childhood. Now, I believe, God will be as gracious to him in His kingdom.

“ These photos are approximately 30 years apart, me as a baby and my daughter Charlotte when she got to meet her Great Grandpa Knapp last summer. They shared lots of smiles and laughs that day as he and I did over the last 30+ years.
